You're In The "Jeff Generation"

Overflowing not only with students, but also excitement, suspense, and a million and one problems, JHS opened its doors to a new year. From the bewildered expressions of freshmen to the looks of pride and seniority of upperclassmen, the faces showed the anticipation for 1966-67.

This was the year for mini-skirts, long hair, a full house for "The Music Man", and a memorable prom.

Electing officers set freshmen in the pace of high school life. Sophomores buckled down to work as time approached for NEDT tests. Receiving class rings and selling candy to raise money for the prom highlighted the junior's year. Seniors reminisced on the glories and frustrations of four years at Jeff.

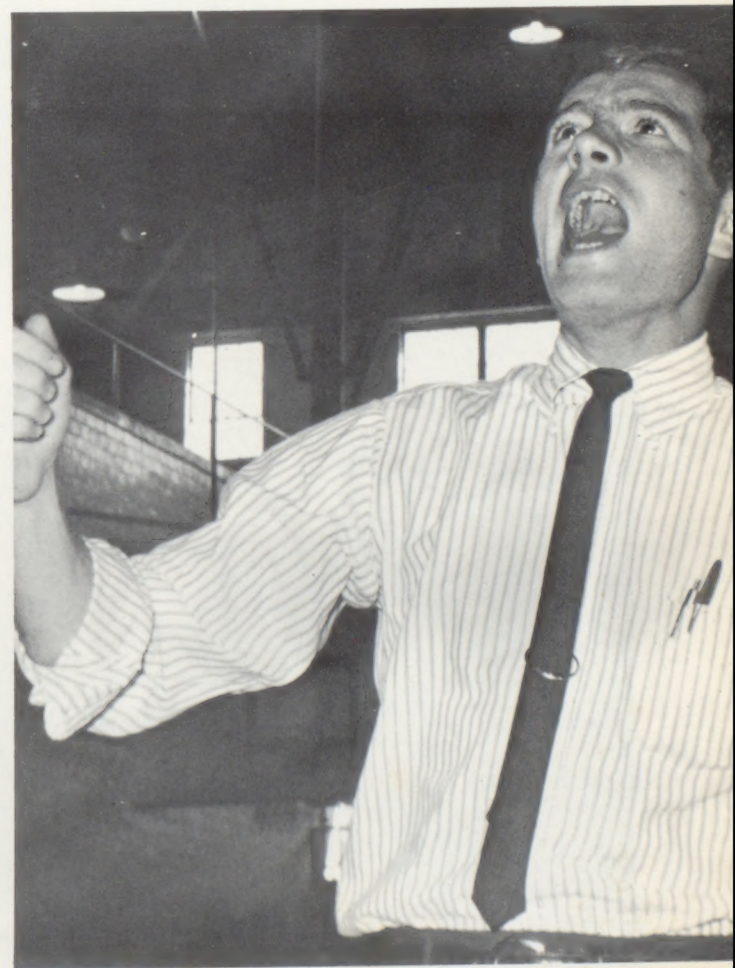

Severe weather caused the dismissal of schools, breaking the daily routine and allowing for extra activities.

Spirit soared as the football team finished with an 8-2 season and the basketball team battled New Albany in a dramatic finish to the Sectional.

Coming to a close, the year reflected on moments of joy and happiness, to apprehension and despair. Images of special occasions, accomplishments and failures, friends, teachers, and the general life at JHS will remain in the minds of its students long after the doors close.

Memorization, production, and accomplishment fills the face of Patty Simmonds, senior, as she rehearses "Eulalie" in Student Theatre's "The Music Man."

Football Team, Homecoming Highlight

In the half-time of the Jeff football game, Marjon Mol, Jeff's, foreign exchange student and Marquita Dean, senior, shared the honor of being crowned guest and homecoming queen.

School Year, Charge Student Spirit

A warm night and a spirit-filled crowd spark the Jeff-New Albany bonfire.

Drinking a quick coke at half-time, varsity cheerleaders Chris Davis, Charlye Bruce, and Jenny Mennen ponder the outcome of a Jeff football game.

Holding a booster are Charlie Black, Robbie Moore, and Dick Leavell.

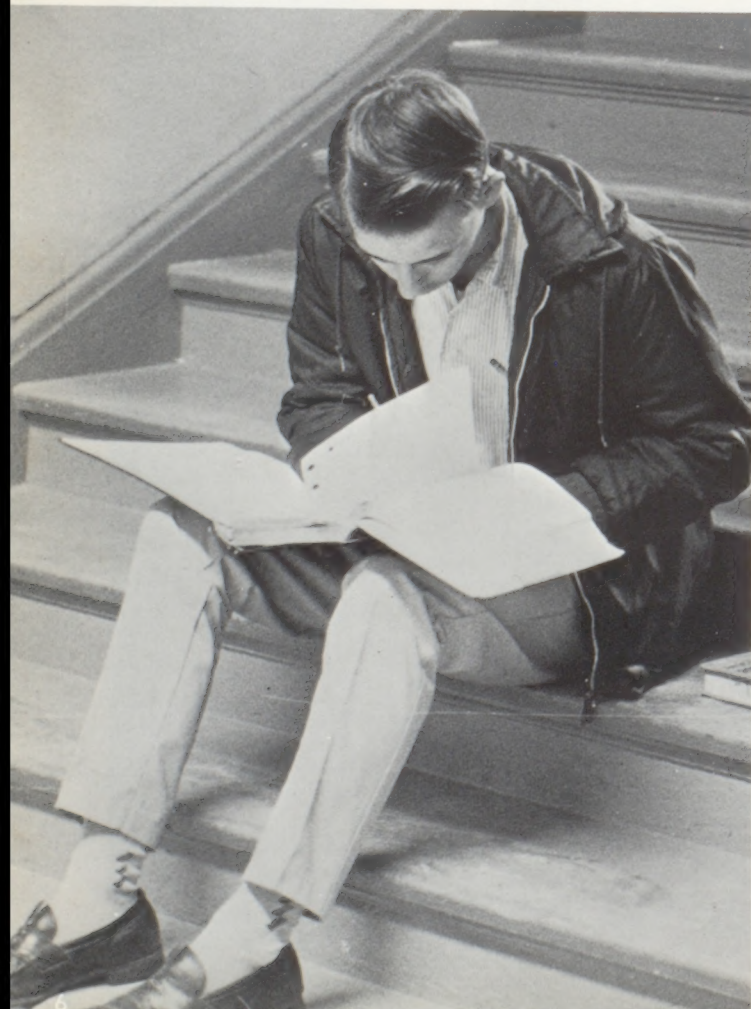

Awaiting the 9:15 bell Karen Small and Terry Tiffany review last night's date as Christine Schneider reads her Health assignment and Gerri Handy memorizes Spanish numerals.

Last Minute Study — Rush To Lockers

Study Hall? No, just stairs and a few free minutes at lunch for this student to finish an assignment.

"Right in here," directs Mr. Philip Peters as students fill empty bleachers and receive schedules for a new year.

"Now, where did that English book go?" queries Debbie Abernathy as she prepares for her first class.

Open First Period

Lingering at lockers while relating details of last night's date, or the tough homework assignment are everyday happenings as a day of classes begins.

The clock approaches time for the bell and a mad rush for the attendance office or the bookstore starts the day for faculty and students.

Rushing into the room for a short cramming session adds to the agony of upcoming tests.

While some studious people hit the books, others make the "social scene." Girls gather in flocks to talk about "him", or the big dance. Steadies pull away from groups to settle arguments or just to talk.

"I smeared my mascara!"

"Do I have too much lipstick on?"

"My hair just won't do anything!" These are typical sounds in the girl's restrooms.

Lockers offered irritating moments for most everyone. Futile attempts to open them led many to "fix" the lock.

As the 8:10 bell gives the last warning, stragglers dash for their classes; another day is underway.

Gazing through a window, beyond the slamming lockers and brimming halls, two JHS students wonder what life is like on the other side—"War, Peace, and Freedom."

Some students enjoy the quiet atmosphere of the library for studying before, during, and after school. Seniors Evelyn Howard and Donna McCorvie work on assignments for their next hour class.

"Are you coming to the game tonight?" ask Marilyn Beswick and Debbie Burns, sophomores, as they talk with friends during lunch.

"Hey sink that B-Ball", command cheerleaders Chris Davis; junior, and Jenny Mennen, senior, during practice basketball game played by the varsity team to boost the spirit of the pep session.

Quick Study Breaks Heated Pep Rally Part of JHS Day

Hurry—Run—Beat that bell! Heels pound the corridors and stairs. Lockers bang to a close ... a student jumps a mud puddle as he dashes to class. These sights set the pace for the "Jeff Generation". During study hall, one finds some students day-dreaming, while others study for a test or write a research paper.

Obtaining a pass to the library, one may browse through the 9,000 fiction and non-fiction books or use the encyclopedias for reference. Enjoying the magazine corner, a leisurely minded student may relax while reading "Life", "Look", and other magazines.

Selling books on "How to Buy Stocks", or the classic "Ivanhoe" or "Hiroshima", the paperback bookstand aids in providing a student with his own reading material.

"Um, that smells good." "That English test made me hungry". These reasons make Jeff students rejoice when their lunch period arrives. Some people prefer the meal in the cafeteria to the hamburger and french fries at O'Neil's or Mac Donalds. Still others enjoy eating at Grecco's Pizza.

Offering not only enjoyable food, these places provide the atmosphere for conversation ranging from dates, to fashions, to cars, to the test next hour.

Quick "Hi's" or fast chit-chats could be heard throughout the year during the five minute break between classes.

"Boy, this food is great!" exclaims Bob Haynes, senior as he dives into one of the hot meals prepared daily by the cafeteria workers.

"Marco, must I spend my life waiting for you? Well, I guess that's the way I'll spend my life ... waiting, waiting, waiting." With music in the background, Sandy Garwood, reads her part in drama class.

Taking time out from work on the Topic, juniors Judy Edwards and Vicky May become absorbed in a copy of the Hyphen.

Fine Arts Provide

"What's my pitch?"

"I like modern art the best."

"This copy just won't fit!"

"To be or not to be."

These are a few of the comments that might be heard as one observes the Fine Arts Department.

Concentration and hard work help develop talents the Jeff student had not really pursued. Whether rehearsing for a concert, touching up a painting or writing copy for the school paper, the modern student advances a step above the text. Playing an instrument or interpreting a song develops abilities beyond the classroom.

Clicking typewriters and the organized confusion of the press captivate a visitor as he enters the journalism room. All the imagination, initiative and pursuit a student can muster, helps to put out the weekly paper, the HYPHEN.

Writing his own campaign speech or dialogue for a play gives the student a chance to show his creative talents. A college-bound student finds the knowledge gained in these areas will give him enjoyment and career opportunities in the future.

In order for success with "The Music Man", cooperation was needed from all involved. Reviewing the plans for stage layout are Mr. Engle, in charge of scenery; Mr. Wann, "Music Man" director; Mr. Cleveland, musical director; and Mr. Davis, band director.

Individual Growth In Cultural Areas

"Top row, move to the left a little bit," urges Mr. Davis, band director, as he lines the band up for a group picture.

With a steady hand and painstaking emphasis, Donnie Bangs, sophomore, applies color to his canvas. The painting was entered in the Jeff High art exhibit.

Home Ec — Business Stimulate Skills For Modern Living

Clicking keys on typewriters, tatooing pencils taking shorthand, or the explanation between a credit and a debit, give the impression of an efficient office in commercial classes. Students following a business course are given practical experience toward a career as a secretary, stenographer, accountant, or other related positions.

The Distributive Education Course of America, an addition to Jeff's curriculum this year, was open to juniors and seniors. "On the job training proved effective for many who participated," stated Mr. James McCauley, D.E.C.A. instructor. He continued, "Part time jobs in area stores and companies offered them experience as well as extra money."

The Home Economics department opened its doors wide this year with the enrollment of several boys. Home Ec not only teaches the basics in sewing and cooking, but also includes home management and good buying practices.

Planning meals for three or twenty, and arranging attractive centerpieces are studied in cooking classes.

In sewing instruction, students learn to choose fabrics economically, color combinations, and how to wear their clothes gracefully and attractively.

"Now let me show you the way to set a margin," explains Mr. Robert Akers, typing instructor, to Libby Stone, junior.

Intent on her work, junior Judy Terrell puts the finishing touches to her garment in sewing class.

Peggy Booth, Linda Commes, and Sharon Allen, find that a flawless paper is not as easy as it looks. They are students in Miss Hoehn's second hour typing class.

Matching fabric samples for a sofa with the decor of the room are Sue Baker, senior; Martha Murphy; senior, and Rebecca Bullock, junior.

Roxie Doyle and Betty DeCamp practice good housekeeping.

"All done!" exclaims Evelyn Meredith to Julie McPhearson.

Viewing algae and fungi under the microscope are Bob Miller and Don Campbell, sophomores.

"I hope it works," states Mr. Kennedy demonstrating an experiment in advanced chemistry class.

John Caldwell locates organs of the frog.

Math And Sciences Ready Students For Tomorrow's Needs

It's 2:00 P.M. and the mercury is still rising rapidly. The formaldehyde stings your eyes. The room reeks of odorous dissections. A chemistry grade literally goes up in smoke as a carefully planned experiment fails.

Learning physics seems like an endless process of mechanics, perpetual motion, and engineering. An earnest young scientist begins the chore of cleaning up the broken fragments of a once crystal-clear test tube. Multi-colored chemicals deck the shelves, with acids behind the locked cabinet. This is the science department; equipped with eager minds, sparkling eyes, and potent odors.

Some ponder over probability and statistics, others search for the key to analytical geometry. Beginners start off with general math or algebra, while still other students test their wits to elementary functions.

With a large percent of high school students entering college, one must have a good knowledge of mathematics. Increasing positions as engineers and technicians are open to those who understand concepts of math and science.

Mr. Kennedy aids Patty Rodden as she measures a solution in chemistry lab.

Mr. Peters explains the cylinder to Daryl Bixler and Sandra Worrall.

Exercise, Sports Produce Physically Fit

"Mayim! Mayim! Mayim! These are shouts heard during an Israeli rain dance. Girl's sophomore gym classes learn basic steps to folk and square dances, as well as modern dances from different countries.

P.E. classes practice techniques in soccer, volleyball, and basketball, while many find themselves in odd positions as they master a duckwalk and build pyramids.

The schedule of sports and activities for boys includes wrestling, basketball, volleyball, softball, and track. Gymnastics offers exercise on the trampoline, side horse, and parallel bars.

Cranium ... maxilla ... ulna ... Students become better acquainted with the structures and functions of the body. Health classes also learn first aid and disease prevention.

"Turn right at the next corner and parallel park. And you can go faster than 10 miles an hour."

"Who me?" Parallel park? You must be kidding!" This is common conversation when Mr. Mann and Mr. Sylvester try to keep their composure as young drivers take to the road.

Drivers Education prepares the teenager for the dangers of the modern highway, and teaches general information about cars and safe driving.

Gym classes emphasized co-ordination and physical fitness. Ann Harbison prepares to take her serve in a game of volleyball in girls' physical education class.

David Phelps performs a perfect headstand. Before boys 'were allowed on the mats, instructors stressed safety precautions.

"Over you go!" urges Ronnie Lewis to his tumbling partner.

Basketball wasn't just a boys' sport this year. Patty Purser and Pat Bizer learned guarding, and offensive and defensive types of play.

Language Arts Open To Understanding

"This book captured my interest and gave true reading pleasure. The author wrote with meaning and purpose," reveals senior George Heuser as he concludes his oral book report in English class.

Squeaky chalk, hesitant answers, and puzzled expressions add to the atmosphere of English and language classes.

Clauses and phrases, gerunds and participles, and fragmented sentences shattered the minds of most students during one semester of grammar.

Humorous essays, novels, and poetry contributes to the enjoyment for literature students. Reports, speeches, and term papers are often assigned to further study.

T.V. English and team teaching were added to classes which offered an opportunity to broaden one's knowledge and develop wider interests.

Developmental reading gives a student a chance to the enjoyment for literature students. Reports, speed is stressed, much emphasis is placed on comprehension.

Studying a language allows a student to become more aware of the custom and cultures of neighboring countries. The language lab helps him correct errors in grammar, and hear how natives speak. Spanish, French, Latin, and German make up the language department at Jeff.

"O World, I cannot hold thee close enough . . ." recites a senior student studying the poetry of Edna St. Vincent Millay. Fiction, non-fiction stories, essays, poetry, and dramatic plays are studied by literature students for one semester.

Of Customs, Cultures Of Other People

Freshman Trudy Moore reads one of the selections in the developmental reading laboratory. The course, taught by Mrs. Waddell, builds up speed in reading skill and comprehension.

"Wieviel Uhr es ist?" questions Miss Shepard, instructor, to students in her first year German class. Students in first year learn basic conversation and pronunciation.

With book reports only a few days away, or a research paper needed for history; sometimes that book you want just isn't on the shelf. Sophomore, Mary Geary is discovering this fact.

"The U.S. excels in the production of autos and trucks," points out Susan Martin, a student in economics class. Students learn to buy stocks and bonds, observe federal reserve banks, and study the economic condition of the United States and the world.

Studying Past, Present, And Future Gives

Rising world problems make it necessary for the modern student to keep up to date on current events. Social studies involves foreign and domestic affairs, so in order to study each phase in detail, the department is divided into six sections.

Beginning with prehistoric man, World History advances to European development, and studies in detail the World Wars with many events in between. Panel discussions, news magazines, and relating of personal experiences supplement the text and notebooks.

From Independence Day to the launching of the first space capsule, U.S. History involves the past, present, and future.

World Geography offers a chance to become aware of the physical aspects and locations of many countries. Documents and maps give the course a new dimension.

Looking deep into government and economy, one is brought face to face with the problems that lie ahead for him to solve. Observing local and state government he may develop an interest that will lead to a career in this field.

After leaving the classroom and closing the text, it is up to the student, himself, to apply what he has learned to the best of his ability.

On a visit to Jeff High School, TV history teacher, Mr. John Dickey plays and sings a folk song for students in Mr. Barr's second hour class.

"... their creator with certain unalienable rights," quotes Eddie Hatfield as Donnie Sanders compares these words to "The Freedom Pledge."

"What country did you say to locate?" questions Steve McLaughlin as he searches the globe in one of Mr. Russell's world history classes.

Varied Background In Social Studies

Trying to get her point across, Miss Reid, government teacher, seems lost for words.

Psychology And Sociology Offer Insight

"Doesn't this ink block remind you of a fish?" "What causes this emotional state?" These questions provided peculiar answers and stumped minds of many psychology and sociology students.

Even though these are elective courses, seniors are urged to take one semester of psychology and one semester of sociology. In sociology, the cause of the problem is studied, whereas; in psychology, the problem itself is more important.

For most, these were interesting and beneficial subjects. Probing deep into the background provides the reason for the actions of the people. This fact and others is discovered during lectures and discussions by sociology students.

In psychology, emphasis is placed on recognizing the mental patient, his various characteristics, and the type therapy best suited for him.

Psychology and sociology go together to arouse the student's interest in helping to solve his own problems. However, the main goal is to allow students to understand themselves and others.

Trying to decide as to what this ink block reminds him of, is Dwight Pelky, senior, in Mr. Detamore's psychology class.

"This is a characteristic of the schizophrenic type mental patient," explains Mr. Detamore. Seniors choose psychology and sociology for a one semester elective.

Into Character And Personality Development

Panel discussions were one of the activities in psychology and sociology. Seated around the table are Robert Orndorf, Barbra Kemper, Bernie Wright, and Stephanie Redd.

"Blind man's bluff?" wonders Eddie Haire, senior. "I thought this was psychology."

Cleaning her T-square, Leslie Watson, sophomore, ponders a measurement in Mr. Huber's mechanical drawing class.

Isometrics and pictorials are figures recognized by students in Mr. Huber's advanced mechanical drawing class.

Industrial Arts Provide Foundations

"Now what seems to be your problem?" asks Mr. Morris, auto shop teacher, as he views under the hood with Dennis Singer.

For Future Vocations

Making tools in metal shop, planning and laying out drafts in mechanical drawing, and fixing the linkage in a gearshift in auto shop are activities in Industrial Arts classes. Teaching basic skills, these courses set foundations for future vocations.

Crankshafts, brake shoes, and carburetors top the vocabulary of auto shop students. Learning the parts and functions of a car gives one an opportunity to work part-time in filling stations, or teaches him to recognize problems that may arise.

Dividers, angles, and compressors combine to help the mechanical drawing student as he reproduces architectural designs. The addition of three girls to this class shows that the subject may be of interest to many.

Through experimenting and reading the text, students learn the technical aspects as well as mechanical procedures in all phases of Industrial Arts.

Practical experience in woodshop carries over to interesting hobbies. At the same time, one creates useful objects.

Co-operation and safety are stressed through many hours of textbook study before the student is released on any equipment.

Working with the lathe, Jack West, junior, shapes a piece of wood into a lamp base.

One—two—three—four. Left—right—left. Umbrellas, wet raincoats, or shuffling feet didn't bother junior, Phillip Croxton, on one of Jeff's rainy days. His body seems to keep rhythm with the pound of the rain as he heads towards class.

Class Change Provides Time For Chats,

Janet Fischer, senior finds the atmrails along the stairway a helpful book rest on which to finish her English assignment.

Weary glances let you know that school is almost over. Buzz . . . "and the assignment for tomorrow is . . ." The rush begins. The first of many lockers open and bang close. Friends rush to tell "her" what "he" said, or to discuss the details of the economics test. Others hurry to the bookstore for a ticket to the big game, or flood the counselor's office with questions about next semester's schedule.

"Hey, where are you going?"

"I've got an executive student council meeting."

"Let's go get a coke at the Ranch House."

"Okay, but how about the A & W instead?"

"Come on, or we'll miss the bus!"

"Go ahead, I've got basketball practice."

An eager student scrambles to the parking lot to show the gang his new set of wheels, hoping he can make it through the exodus of out-going cars.

Even after school, the mad, mad world of the "generation" goes on with cokes, rehearsals, practices, and meetings. Mad!

When just about everyone has cleared out of the building, there are always a few stragglers. Their voices echo through the halls.

"Do you want to help me arrange the display case?"

"I can't. I'm decorating the gym."

"Do you have the English assignment for tomorrow?"

"I forgot it! Oh well, I'll do it in study hall."

Waiting for rides home, four J.H.S. girls discuss varied topics.

Meeting Steadies

"Me next," urges Peggy Hettinger senior to junior Brenda Herron.

Secretaries Mrs. Woodward, Mrs. Philips, and Mrs. Elliot take time out from the daily routine for a quick chat.

Taking his serve, Robbie Moore sends it across the net to Darrel Lawrence, in a practice tennis match.

Patience, Practice, And Problems Pave

Long hours under hot fieldhouse lights, memorizing and reciting lines to a play, and tackling a new choral arrangement for an upcoming concert are the first steps on the road leading to success and achievement.

The Student Theatre often practiced "after hours". Strolling by the Old Gym one may have heard "Eulalie" rehearsing with the "Del Sarte Ladies", or Mr. Wann giving advice on how to improve a scene.

At the same time in another room, decorations began shaping up for the Beau Brummel dance. Whatever the occasion, JHS'ers often returned to begin work or add finishing touches on a project.

J'ettes ran through their routine to the music of "Cotton Candy" readying for their next performance.

Rushing to meet deadlines, the TOPIC staff worked diligently writing copy, and fitting headlines.

Practicing all summer proved beneficial as the band came away with top honors from local and state contests.

Paying off before audiences, capacity crowds, and the student body, students achieved success in many fields.

Jim Croudep watches expectantly as Alan Cundiff tries for a lay-up shot before the game.

"Three Blind Mice" was performed by Kendra Bowyer, Patty Simmonds, and Gail Bruce during half-time at the Jeff-Columbus game.

Road Of Achievement And Success At JHS

"You're right!" exclaims Joe Gelbach to Steve McDowell as they rehearse a scene from "Arsenic and Old Lace."

Running the scale on his saxophone, Ronnie Simmons, junior, practices for the Spring Concert. Presented March 5, a new accomplishment was added to the band's list.

Her face beaming with pride and admiration for the team, and maybe her heart pounding in wonder as to how the team will play, cheerleader Lee Ann Stemler, leads the Pep Club in "On Red Devils".

Frustrations, Despair Add To Meaning

Jan Woodruff stares in disbelief as she listens to Jan Williams and Ronnie Perkins discuss an unfortunate event in "Arsenic and Old Lace". Many hours and tons of practice went into making "Arsenic and Old Lace" a success.

"Let's try that part again," suggests Mr. Eugene Davis, band instructor, as he listens to a student's work.

Gail Fitch and Dave Forsee take their curtain calls before a capacity crowd at "The Music Man."

Of Accomplishment

All work and no play ...Chrissie Parido and Barbara Phelps laugh at a funny incident in Home Ec class.

Susan Martin, Sue Miller, and Penny Herdt show anticipation as they cheer Jeff to victory during an exciting game.

Dave Natterman and Larry Williams practice the "Bat Man Theme" preparing for a pep rally before a game.

Silence is Golden. A moment alone to think and to wonder is discovered in Cathedral St. John's Divine in New York City by Marjon Mol.

Taking advantage of the heavy snow, fallen temperature, and a deserted field, a day off from classes gives Debbie Abernathy a chance to try her hand at skiing.

Slapping the brush, Mr. Engle, art director, puts the finishing touches to part of the scenery in "The Music Man."

Jenny Mennen smiles as Lee Ann Stemler crowns her queen of the 1967 Junior-Senior Prom.

Taking time off the dance floor for a moment are Mike Powell and Debbie Chase.

Trip, Snow, Plays, Prom Are Fun For All.

Linda Baete and Byron Johnson enjoy the Polynesian atmosphere of the Prom.

Prom queen candidates were Lee Ann Stemler, Janet Krause, Terri Bernhart, and Marquita Dean.

Class Challenged For Troubled World

Debbi Wood, valedictorian, Paul Gresham, salutatorian, and Patricia Reed, salutatorian, congratulate each other on their accomplishments and achievements while in high school.

Marjon Mol, foreign exchange student, presents a picture of a church in her home town to Mr. Strycker, who will display it in the school.

Marjon walks down the aisle after receiving a standing ovation from the senior class at graduation ceremonies on June 9.

On Honors Day

"Life is full of vinegar and honey. But if you plan your work and work your plan—the vinegar will come in teaspoons and the honey in buckets."

With these words, Dr. Medcalf, superintendent of schools, charged the graduating class of 1967 to put all their energies into their chosen field "for there are plenty of small hills around to climb."

Dr. Medcalf presented the diplomas to the 350 Jeffersonville graduates with the assistance of Principal Harold Strycker. He also introduced the Board of School Trustees.

The class history was read by Patricia Reed and Paul Gresham addressed the near capacity crowd in the Jeff Fieldhouse. Both students are co-salutatorians while Deborah Wood was valedictorian.

Jan Woodruff, vice-president of the class, presented Marjon Mol, American Field Service exchange student from the Netherlands, with a gift from the class. Marjon in turn gave a painting from her country to Jeffersonville High School. She had been a student at JHS since last summer.

Pat Hoehn, president, led the class in the changing of the tassels. Rev. Christopher of the Wall Street Methodist Church gave the invocation and benediction.

Activities

Organizations function through student interest and participation. The organizations of Jeffersonville High School range in purpose from academics and career, to honors, service and athletics.

Attitudes, abilities, and ambitions help the student decide which club to join. All the groups strive to better the individual, but the club is only as good as the individuals who work to better the group.

Car washes, student-faculty games, and Bermuda Day helped pave the way for other clubs' activities.

With the help of the Jeff Boosters, the Key Club raised over $9000 for the Spence Jones Fund. Many clubs sent their members to summer workshops at Indiana and Ball State Universities, while others went abroad to study languages and customs. A hat dance in Spanish Club, bowling tournaments in GAA, or a serious discussion about an exchange student in AFS allowed Jeff students to display their physical and emotional abilities that set them at the threshold to adult life.

Color Volume Generates Topic Spirit

Quick snacks between breaks at night work sessions kept the 1967 TOPIC staff in good humor as work piled up and deadlines drew near.

Starting with only eight members, the TOPIC recruited fifteen new students from the beginning journalism class. Together with a new staff came a new advisor, Mr. Nick Goble, who hails from Lakeland High School in La Grange, Indiana. Aiding Mr. Goble and the staff was a new yearbook handbook patterned after Life and Look magazines. Along with other equipment, the TOPIC was greatly helped by photographers Mr. Norris Mode, senior Bob Johnston, and junior Mike McKinney.

Last year the TOPIC was sent to the National Scholastic Press Association (NSPA) for yearbook rating and came away with a second-class rating.

This year the only senior on the staff was Dwight Pelkey. However, next year's book can look forward to familiar faces as the '67 staff returns to publish the 99th volume of the TOPIC.

Representing Jeff at the journalism workshops at Indiana University last summer were Nora Egan and Randy Stewart.

Judy Edwards and Donna Hall look at layouts from last year's book.

Challenges And Accomplishments Created

HYPHEN staff members are: First Row—Steve Thompson, Paige Farnsley, Kathy Barr, Donna Woods, Susan Martin, Cora Parham, Janet Robertson, Ryan Brewer. Standing: Bob Johnston, Debbie Abernathy, Ann Cody, Rusti Barry, Gerri Handy, Cheryl Owen, Sharon Brown, Cathy DuBrucq, Kathy Conn.

Gerri Handy shows Ann Cody a feature story to type for the HYPHEN. All typists were kept busy in meeting deadlines.

Taking a giant step forward, the HYPHEN staff set high goals. Expanding to a weekly paper promised long hours, frustrations, and eventual achievement.

Under the leadership of Kathy Conn as editor, and Mr. Nick Goble, advisor, the paper sparked the interest of many, as it offered hope of interpreting and reporting events concerning JHS'ers.

Debbie Abernathy, business manager, and her staff, pushed HYPHEN sales with posters, skits, and contests.

Interesting to many is the fact that the paper featured a girl as sports editor, Susan Martin. Her column covered all sports and supplied background and statistics.

Seen at ballgames, plays, dances, and almost wherever the Jeff student was apt to be, Bob Johnston and his camera were a twosome, later providing a picture account of JHS life.

To most students, the HYPHEN satisfied a great need in the school—a concise, informative, and interesting paper.

By Weekly Hyphen

Mr. Nick Goble, publications advisor, listens to a HYPHEN staff member as they relate a funny experience about an interview.

Ryan Brewer, Phil Shope, and Steve Thompson cut the paper which is used to make posters urging students to buy HYPHENS.

Nick Goble, journalism adviser, muses as Gary Schultz, COURIER JOURNAL sports writer, reads his "Alumni of the Year" award.

Eighteen journalism students were introduced into the International Organization of Quill and Scroll at a banquet held at Parkview Junior High School, April 25. Guest speaker for the evening was Bill Ladd of the COURIER JOURNAL. Nick Goble, adviser for the HYPHEN and TOPIC served as emcee.

To become a member of Quill and Scroll, a student must be in the upper one-third of his class and must be enrolled in the beginning journalism class taught by Mrs. Mary Ann Hineman or work on the HYPHEN or TOPIC.

The Student Theatre was kept busy this year working on three fine productions. "Carousel", the last of the year began rehearsals in March for the program in May. Nancy Strickland,

Jan Neumeister, and Neyland Clark run through a number for the play.

"Carousel" Last

The rehearsals were long and frustrating. Sometimes a moment alone was appreciated.

During rehearsals, there were hectic moments of getting the right person in the right place at the right time.

Ronnie Perkins and student director Gayle Fitch discuss a change in dialogue for "Julie" played by Becky Mayflower.

Production of Year by Student Theater

House lights dimmed, the audience was hushed. Tension, expectations, and hopes mounted. This setting provided over 2300 people with the exhilarating feeling of "being in River City."

Many hours of rehearsing, sacrifices, and determination, turned the script and choral arrangement of "The Music Man" into a successful show.

Mr. Jack Wann directed the show with Dave Forsee and Gayle Fitch playing the leads.

The orchestra and Mr. Eugene Davis provided a third dimension to the show as "Seventy-Six Trombones" filled the auditorium.

Capacity crowds laughing and applauding convinced the "Arsenic and Old Lace" cast time was well spent.

The formation of a special chorus coupled with the choral direction of Mr. John Cleveland, entered into making "Carousel" the most elaborate production in the Student Theatre's history.

Gary Maracheck portrayed Billy Bigelow, a sometimes unfeeling person who married Julie Jordan (Becky Mayflower), a quiet demure girl.

"You'll Never Walk Alone", the finale ultimo, not only ended "Carousel", but also brought to a close another season for the Student Theatre.

Over and over again until it became a part of them, Gary Maracheck and Becky Mayflower practiced "If I Loved You".

This frenzied activity of a carnival opened "Carousel." Elementary and Jeff High students made up the over 120 member cast.

Choral Department! The Voices of Jeff

Singing proved a great interest for many Jeff students with over 300 enrolled in the Choral Department.

The Freshman Mixed Chorus was composed of 69 members. The purpose of this group was to become acquainted with music by performing it. Accompanied by Jan Neumeister on the piano, the Freshmen performed a variety of songs ranging through popular, novelty, spiritual, religious, art songs, and folk songs.

The "Jeff Belles" a name more preferred by the girls than "Girls' Glee" is composed of sophomore, junior, and senior girls singing all types of songs arranged for a girls' chorus. The 35 girls accompanied by Sue Phillips become experienced in the development of their choral singing.

Eighty-two sophomore, junior, and senior students make up the A Cappella Chorus. To become a member, students either had to audition if they hadn't been in a choir before, or were selected from the Freshman Mixed chorus. With the accompaniment of Ann Goodman and Nancy Strickland the A Cappella Choir served as a bond between the Freshman and Concert Choir. Their purpose was to present music in a more varied way than the other choirs.

Girls more advanced in their singing ability and musical understanding are chosen for Advanced Girls' Chorus. These 63 sophomore, junior, and senior girls display a talent in all types of songs. "This is one of the most expressive choirs that I have had the honor to teach. They take a joy in presenting a song well," commented Mr. Cleveland. Some of the girls audition and are selected to sing in Advanced Girls' Ensemble. With the accompaniment of Anne Finch, they represent Jeff at various community organizations, affairs and banquets.

The greatest honor offered by the choral department is to be chosen for Concert Choir. Junior and Senior students' selection is based on the training they have received from other choirs or through their auditions. Amy Jo Coombs was the accompanist for the Concert Choir as they sang a variety of songs, especially those of higher caliber. Mr. Cleveland remarked, "There is a pride in achievement, there is a pride in the making of music. There is personal pride in belonging to a group of this rank."

Amid the annual Spring and Christmas concerts presented at Parkview auditorium and the Choral Club dance, the choral department walked away with top honors, snatching five of five place awards at the Valley Choral Festival held at Silver Creek High School, April 15.

Madrigals Sing Their Way to Top Honors

Some of the choral department students with a wider interest in their field of music decided to go further in their choral singing. Through their competitive auditions, as a solo or in small ensembles, they were selected to be in the Jeff Madrigals. The madrigals are divided into three groups: the senior madrigals with 19 members, the sophomore and junior madrigal group having 17 members, and the freshman madrigals which has 20 members.

The Madrigals, an unaccompanied group were secular choral compositions in Italy, France, and Germany during the 16th century and England during the 17th century. Today they are Jeff High's ambassadors at various clubs, church, and community activities.

All three madrigal groups won district and state awards at the Indiana State and Music Association Solo-Ensemble Contest this year.

JHS Band Kept Busy Playing In Concerts, Contests, At Games

Blaring trumpets, squeaking oboes and crashing cymbals start the warming up period before band practice.

A roll of drums suddenly turns a quiet waltz into an exhilarating march. Eyes and ears are alert. Concentration, apprehension, and finally achievement cross the faces of band members as the many hours of practice produce a finished product.

Band is one class that doesn't end when school is over. Instead, one may find the JHS marching band performing drills and routines early in the morning during the summer months at Memorial Park.

"The Star Spangled Banner" and "On Red Devils" penetrated the air as the marching band displayed their ability to perform varied selections at the home football games.

"The Bat Man Theme" and "Joshua" echoed through the fieldhouse during half-time at basketball games.

State contests highlighted the year for the brass quartet and the french horn quartet as they received first place at the State Solo and Ensemble Contests.

Charleye Bruce watches the music closely as she plays the tympanie.

Terry Frazer and John Fry practice for the Christmas concert.

Clef Club officers for '66-67 are: Donna Schifferly, Secretary; Cathy Moore, President; Shirley Martin, Properties Manager; Steve Fleeman, Vice President. The Clef Club consists of the senior participants of the band who show outstanding interest in music.

Band officers are: Sue Phillips, wardrobe; Terry Frazer, historian; Tina Hambley, wardrobe; David Kilbrew, Vice President;

Rita Alexander, President; Linda Phipps, Secretary; Bobby Goss, properties.

Betty Holmes, Brenda Worrall, and Tina Hambley (Seated Front Row) tackle an arrangement preparing for the state contest.

Also rehearsing are Susan Condra, Becky Knox, Kenny Kirkman, Angie Stewart, Rita Alexander, and Ronnie Simmonds.

"Instruments up ... everyone ready? Let's begin at measure twenty eight," says Mr. Eugene Davis, band director, before starting the morning's work.

Sissy Beatty concentrates on the music and tries to watch Mr. Davis at the same time. Alertness is an important characteristic in a band member.

Selling posters to boost JHS spirit began the busy year for the Art club. David Forsee presided during the 1966-1967 term, heading the committees which organized the many activities and projects of the club.

The profit from these sales added to the treasury and provided the money to send members to Chicago. During this trip students visited museums and art galleries.

The club sponsored an art show, awarding prizes and honoring participants. Members also took field trips in this area to become acquainted with local places featuring art.

Richard Eich Leads The Psychology Club

Richard Eich provided the leadership for the Psychology club during the past year, assisted by Terri Bernhart, vice-president. Penny Herdt served as secretary, while Rita Blanenbeker assumed the treasurer's duties.

The forty-five members participated in panel discussions, which proved interesting and informative.

A representative from Craigmont Mental Hospital gave insights on the treatment and care of the mental patient. Another interesting meeting took place when Marjon Mol, Jeff's foreign exchange student, spoke to the group, telling of her home and answering questions that were brought up by club members.

Harold Strycker, principal, spoke to the club, explaining his duties and provided general discussion.

Preparing and delivering baskets set members in the spirit of Christmas when they supplied families with meat and can goods.

Students eligible for the Psychology club are those taking psychology and sociology. The club offers opportunities to learn and experience outside the classroom.

Key Club members Mike Powell, Jim Carlberg, Bob Conlon, and Tin Williams are pictured as they attend a Jeff Kiwanis Club meeting.

Led by Mike Powell, president, the Key Club participated in many community activities. Affiliated with the Kiwanis Club, members helped sell oranges for the annual money-making drive.

Selling programs at basketball and football games occupied many hours for club participants.

New members cleaned the trophy case in the main hall for an extra project.

Spirit as well as the club's treasury was rejuvenated after the boys sold "Jeff Red Devil" license plates.

Knowing the foreign exchange student, having a chance to travel to Europe and live with a foreign family, or just going ice-skating are some of the advantages the American Field Service offers its members.

Though the membership dwindled from previous years, spirits soared.

Jan Woodruff, Jeff's summer exchange student, provided one of the many interesting programs when she related her experiences in England.

Marjon Mol, exchange student from the Netherlands, reported on customs and cultures of her country. This created interest which led to members becoming more active in the club.

Selling Christmas decorations, cards, and raffle tickets, mounted the budget and spurred outside interest in AFS work. Sore muscles, tired feet, and extra money resulted from the car wash held in April. Sponsoring Bermuda Day offered another chance to add to the treasury.

The club hopes to increase membership and interest even more next year with other activities and projects.

Latin Club Studies, Reviews Old World

Organized this year, the Latin Club, sponsored by Miss Helen Frum, received 38 charter members.

Expanding a student's interest in Latin beyond the class room, set the club's main goals. Keeping this idea in mind, Carl Eichenberger, President, and Steve Preston, Vice-President, lead in organizing activities. Marcia Mimms served as Secretary, and Sarah Mimms as Treasurer.

Monthly meetings offered a variety of programs. Participating in skits spoken in Latin, helped members increase their vocabulary and produced unusual situations.

Attending the state convention of the Indiana Junior Classical League highlighted the year for some participants. Held in Muncie, the event provided a chance to meet other Latin students and to learn of future activities and projects.

Discussing future programs, activities, and projects for the Latin club are Roger Norem and Carl Eichenberger.

"The Old Country" Adds German Flair

Freshman Kathy Kahl talks to the German Club about the customs and traditions of Germany.

Members of the German Club this year experienced the learning of a language along with its customs and ways of living. Learning about the enchanting country helps Americans to understand the ideas and habits of foreigners.

In her first year at Jeff, Miss Shepard tried to create an atmosphere of "Deutschland" by not allowing English questions to be asked.

The big event of the year was the Christmas party. Punch was made from a German recipe and served warm. Games such as "buzz" and "bingo" were played using German numbers. Refreshments were served, and to help maintain an atmosphere of "The Old Country", German folk records furnished the background.

Officers this year included: Tinsley Williams; president, Debbie Chase; secretary-treasurer, and Bobby Reed; vice-president.

In preparing for next year, Miss Shepard hopes to improve the German Club even more by giving it a German name.

For the purpose of learning more about the people, the club plans to subscribe to one of the popular German magazines.

Spanish Club Kept Busy Year 'Round

Presenting Spanish skits to the German and French clubs provided an interesting program for the Spanish club. Conversation skills were tested during one of the meetings when members participated in word games.

Activities and programs were led by Nancy Mode, president; Tracey Clyatt, vice-president; Jean Perry, secretary; Becky Rhodes, treasurer; Mike Powell, sergeant-at-arms. Miss Jane Sheppard, sponsor, assisted the officers in organizing club work.

Breaking the pinata highlighted the Christmas party at which Spanish games offered entertainment. Decorations supplied the colorful atmosphere of a real Spanish Christmas.

Learning Spanish dances gave an interesting account of the customs of Spain and South American countries.

Bringing the year to a close, Spanish club members enjoyed a picnic at Irquois Park in Louisville, where they hiked, played tennis, and roasted marshmallows.

French Club Enjoys Banquet, Lectures

Anne Harbison watches Steve Shuman as he says his lines in French in the club's play.

"Le Cercle Francais", or "The French Club", got off to a flying start in its premiere season. Beginning with the election of the executive board, under the supervision of Miss Cheryl Miller, the club soared upward. Karen Windell was elected President; with Steve Shuman, Vice-president; Nancy McKee, Treasurer; Yvonne Rice, Secretary and Bill Prentice, Sergeant-at-arms aiding through the year.

The October meeting offered a slide-lecture on Castles of the French countryside. December marked the performance of a skit on French Christmas customs. To start off the New Year, the January meeting was highlighted by Debbie Shewski, a freshman that lived in Verdun, France for two years. Debbie spoke of the part of France of which she was familiar and showed some of the souvenirs she brought back.

German and Spanish Clubs joined forces with their French colleagues in order to give the March meeting an international flair. In March also, members received French Club pins. The pins, chosen by vote at a meeting, were enjoyed by all those who purchased one.

Highlighting the French Club's activities was the final banquet at the La Normandie in Louisville. The banquet inspired all the guests to believe that despite any difficulties in the French language, French fun is Jeff fun. "Vive le Francais."

Geometry, algebra, calculus, and other areas helped increase knowledge and interest in mathematics for eager students who joined the Math club. Sponsored by Mr. Phillip Peters, head of the math department, the club studied mathematical processes normally not taken up in the classroom.

Meeting once a month, members reviewed and discussed formulas, equations and other principles to test alertness and comprehension.

Charlotte Clerici, president, along with the other officers, helped organize programs that would challenge and create interest for club participants.

Math club members, Mary Westlake and Fred McCracken, look over books in the mathematics section of the library to enrich their knowledge of the world around them.

Christmas Project Highlights HFT Year

Membership is small but accomplishments and satisfaction are great. This describes the Hope for Tomorrow club.

During the school year, the HFT club repaired toys and delivered Christmas gifts to needy children. An Easter egg dying party provided a chance for members to prepare fifty baskets that were distributed in the area.

Officers serving in 1966-1967 include Larry Hendren, president; Ken Ritter, vice-president; Charlotte Renfro, secretary; and Jim Vogt, treasurer. These people lead the club throughout the year, along with Mrs. Norva Meyer, sponsor.

Selling toboggans started the fund raising campaign to provide money for future work.

Receiving the names of ten families, the club organized shopping trips, clean-up-fix-up projects, and set to work making each family's Christmas a memorable one. This was the largest and probably the most rewarding project of the year.

Preparing Easter baskets is an annual project of the HFT club. Standing are Mrs. Meyer and Jim Vogt. Also helping are Charlotte Renfro and Ken Ritter.

Mr. & Mrs. Clean Contest Sponsored By Jeff F.H.A. Club

A candlelight service on October 11, was the scene for the induction of new members and officers of the Future Homemakers of America.

Among the many activities of the FHA were serving as guides for the Indiana State Teachers' Association, being hostesses for the PTA Open House, and selling cookbooks. Valentines were sent to former JHS students that are serving in Viet Nam, while stamps were collected and donated to an overseas food relief program. At Easter time baskets were taken to a needy family. FHA also sponsored a Mr. and Mrs. Clean contest in which garbage cans were labeled with teachers' names and then students "put their garbage in the teacher of their choice."

Sponsors of the 1966-67 FHA were Mrs. Laird, Mrs. Evans, and Mrs. Miracle.

Cadet Teaching at local elementary schools provided the main program for Future Teachers of America members. This club, in effect for two years, has had 13 seniors participating in it. Through this type of teaching the members were introduced to the teacher's view of school life.

Opened to only seniors, juniors, and sophomores last year, FTA will add freshmen to their roll next year.

FTA, sponsored by Mrs. Doughty, sent delegates to the Regional Convention at New Albany and also to the State Convention at Indianapolis. At these conventions the delegates learned how they can become the "future teachers of America."

Presiding at the end-of-the-year banquet were: Billie Jo Briscoe, President; Claudia Conner, Vice President; Anne Finch, Secretary; Jean Perry, Treasurer; and Ruth Rudie, Sgt.-At-Arms.

Competition—the key word in athletics; and athletics is the key word at Jeff.

Whether it's football with New Albany, basketball with Providence, or baseball with Seneca, Jeff is competing.

Running or kicking, pitching or passing, the Devils strive for the win.

The biggest game of them all is the Jeff-New Albany football game which was held at New Albany's Buerk Field this year. N.A. squeezed by with a final score of 20-19.

Bolton's gridirons closed the season with 8-2, and Barr's hardwoods finished 10-9.

In track, senior Bob Wright broke the Male-Manual Relays for pole vaulting at 13', while junior Steve Porter was the only Red Devil to represent Jeff at the State Meet held at Bloomington.

Baseball's Jerry Smith pitched a no-hitter against South Bend to close the season 9-9-1 before the Sectional.

The competition department of Jeff is one important part of the booming Jeff Generation.

Jeff Red Devils Charge to 8-2 Record

Jeffersonville didn't win the South Central crown, but according to the All-conference selection they should have.

They placed six Red Devils on the all-star squads, while Bloomington the SCC champs, mustered but five.

Heading the backs and ends were quarterback, Dick Leavell and juniors Steve Porter and Jerry Stephenson.

Linemen included seniors Spence Jones, R. D. Owens, and Jim Van Gilder.

Even though Bloomington trounced Jeff 13-34: Red Devils can boast that it was the only "Big" lose out of the two defeats we had this season.

Jeff has never defeated New Albany football team, but coach "Doc" Bolton's boys believe a 19-20 defeat isn't all that bad.

All in all, Demon's had a highly successful and triumphant season to go down on the records.

Dick Leavell, an All-state selection for quarterback, will undoubtedly go down as one of Jeffersonville's great quarterbacks.

He crossed for 16 touchdowns and 964 yards, hitting on 61 of 130 attempts and a .469 completion average.

Steve Porter and Bob Dallas both returning next year led the squad in rushing.

Porter plowed through Jeff's opponents for 1044 yards in 161 carries, while Dallas came on strong, during the second half of the season picking up 547 in 102 carries.

In the pass catching department, Jim Croudep, Stephenson, and Porter were Leavelles' favorite targets, snaring a total of 15 touchdowns.

Defensively little Jim Van Gilder led the squad in tackles with 58, while R. D. Owens had 47, Butch Chambers with 45, and Spence Jones with 44, followed.

Panthers, Dogs; Thorns In Demon's Side

Scoring five straight wins, Jeffersonville's Red Devils captured a record 8-2 winning season.

Senior Gary Smith scored the first touchdown in the 1966 season. After depressing Providence 14-0, the Devils traveled to Clarksville for the season's highest score a 51-6 win.

In a scoreless first quarter, the Demons upset Seymour 41-7. "Any team that beats us with that score has to be awfully tough," remarked Dick Mace, Seymour's coach.

Defeat came October 7, when Jeff met Bloomington at Memorial Park. Scoreless at the beginning of the last quarter, Jeff scored 13 points. However, Homecoming ceremonies brought a smile to the sullen faces of Jeff fans.

One week later, the Devils redeemed themselves by beating the undefeated Greensburg 26-12. "Jeff's the best team we've seen this season," commented Coach Bill Bless, of Greensburg.

With little trouble Jeff mangled Martinsville. This game left Demons tied for second place for the SCC crown.

The bitter taste of defeat came again as the New Albany Bulldogs slipped by the Devils by one point. At one crucial moment Steve Porter scurried 89 yards to score. The Devils led the first half, but New Albany succeeded in catching up soaring to twenty points.

In the last game of the season, Jeff drilled Paoli's Mid-Southern champs 47-18.

In winding up the season, senior Jim Van Gilder scored the last touchdown by intercepting the ball from Pony Leavell.

Astonished gazes are cast by Sparky Spencer, Allan Cundiff, and Coach Dick Barr as sectional tension mounts.

With only three senior members on the Red Devil varsity basketball squad, the team finished with a record of thirteen wins and ten losses for the '67 season.

The opening disappointed fans as Jeff lost to Connersville by ten points. The next game boosted spirits as fans witnessed Providence's 17 point defeat. Franklin managed to override Jeff despite the determination of the team to continue the win record, but Jeff was successful in trouncing Greensburg 62-58. But defeat came again as Jeff lost to Madison by 14 points and Silver Creek by 15.

Some junior varsity recruits from last year sparked upperclassmen team spirit which led to Jeff's victory over Clarksville.

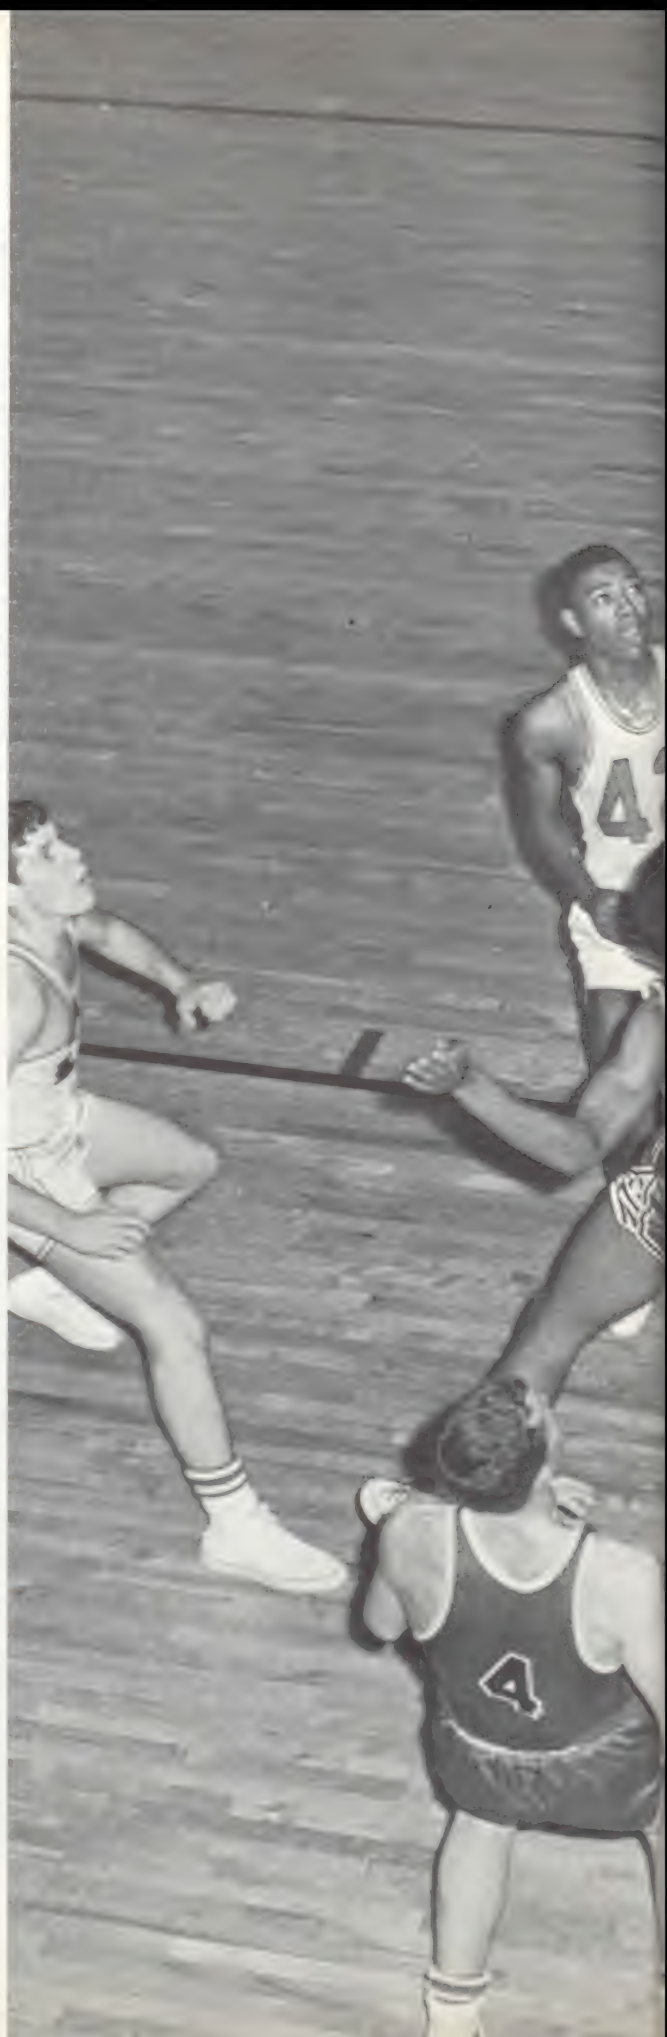

With few hopes and even fewer fans, Jeff moved to East Chicago for the holiday tourney where Hammond managed to squeeze past the Devils by two points. Before returning, Jeff captured a victory over Chesterton 77-65.

Back home, Jeff fell into a losing streak of three games as they were defeated by arch rival New Albany, as well as Shelbyville and Scottsburg.

Just as fans were ready to throw up the white flag, Jeff bounced back to a near winning streak of three games beginning with victories over Martinsville and Muncie South. Only Bloomington blocked the road to victory, and Jeff played one of the finest and most climactic games of the season and lost by only two points.

Nothing hampering the Devils now, they moved into the sectional with four straight victories over Bedford, Jasper, Rushville, and Columbus.

Jeff slipped by Providence and Georgetown in the sectional. Tension was at its peak at the final game where Jeff knuckled under to New Albany for the second consecutive year.

Successful Season

Junior, David Knox, impatiently awaits the referee's whistle before tackling his opponent.

Jeff matmen totaled a team score of five wins and nine losses for the end of the second wrestling season. The greatest number of individual wins was scored by Ed Hubbard, senior, with a 14-7 record.

This was Mr. Larry Mann's first year as wrestling coach.

"Two standouts on the team were Eddie Hubbard and Ken Blanton. Hubbard placed second in the sectional, and Blanton placed third."

"Everybody's going to be back next year except those two guys, so we should be real strong," said Coach Mann.

Student manager, Mike McKinney, feels that "With all the first year men returning for a second season, the Jeffersonville High School wrestling team should have its biggest year."

For 10-10-1 Finish

Probably the most outstanding feat that resulted from the abilities of Bolton's Boys this year, was their seven-game winning streak.

The win streak began by defeating Whiteland 5-1. Continuing with a new vigor, the Jets soared through two double-headers; Corydon and Scottsburg. Valley was Jeff's next victim, falling at 7-3. Ending the streak was the very close lead-off game to the sectional, Jeff versus Providence. Providence fell at 4-3.

If one was to look at the season at a pitcher's eye view, the South Bend Clay game and the first Valley game, would certainly be the highlighters. Both were no hitters pitched by Jerry Smith, the Jeff Jets' pitcher with a superior ability to throw. The former game ended in a 0-0 tie.

Above: Doc Bolton glances about with "well-rounded" prospects in mind for his up-and-coming team.
Right: Rick Crofford is caught between first and second, as Clarks-ville's first baseman prepares to touch base for an out.

With many records broken and many more attempted, the "Dedicated Dozen" of JHS dashed through the season with spirit-filled hopes. Coach Jones commented, "At the beginning of the year, only twelve boys turned out for the squad, but I'm very proud of these boys."

The two top men of the '67 team were senior Bob Wright and junior Steve Porter. Wright broke not only the school record, but also the Memorial Park, Clark County, and the Male-Manual Relay records by vaulting 13'0". Porter shattered both the school and Memorial Park records in the high and low hurdles with times of 19.8 and 14.4. He also holds the New Albany Invitational and Clark County Meet records.

Jeff cindermen Jerry Stephenson and Dave Hammond added many needed points in the broad jump while junior Robbie Moore set the pace in the 100 and 220 yard dashes. Jim Carlberg who runs both hurdles is expected to give Porter some stiff competition next year.

Sailing over the hurdles with "the greatest of ease" is Jeff's ace hurdler, Steve Porter.

Tennis anyone? Dressed in the traditional white garb for his favorite sport, Arlo Van Denver, Jeff's Number One racquetman; serves, swings, and returns, at a tennis match in New Albany. Arlo had a season record of 14 wins and 4 losses.

Through 7-11 Season

This year's netmen used the 1967 season as a foundation year for future matches. Coached by Lawrence Mann, the team won seven matches out of the eighteen played. Team leaders were Arlo Van Denver, a junior and Darrell Lawrence, a sophomore. Arlo completed the season with a record of 14 wins and 4 losses. Darrell, next in the lineup, had 6 wins and 10 losses. Other team members were senior Bobby Johnston, who finished with a record of 5-10; and senior Ralph Kallembach with a 6-12 record. Sophomore, "Nute" Lukins finished with a 4-14 record and was followed up by freshman George Strickland who completed his year with 1 win and 4 losses.

An active tennis fan is Gary Tungett, as he "slams one" over the net at a typical Saturday morning workout.

Brent Witt and his Silver Creek opponent, Bobby Crum compare scores at a golf match played at the Elks Club course.

Golf, Cross Country:

Although lacking a spectacular season, Jeff golfers came in eighth, out of the 27 participants at the Bedford Sectional this year. The birdies and pars were tallied, but not enough came in because Jeff finished with a 3-7 season.

They began by losing two matches against New Albany, which was followed by a similar defeat from Providence. The title of "victor" was redeemed, when Demons defeated the Pioneers in a return match. Against Clarksville, Jeff lost one match, but once again Jeff regained the victory by defeating the Generals two times over. Ending the season the Red Devils lost three matches to Silver Creek and Spring Valley.

Senior Brent Witt, along with sophomores Jeff Higdon and Don Volmer achieved the Outstanding Golfer award. These boys also received Varsity letters. Other Devil golfers to earn the "J" were: Chuck Canter, Frank Upson, and Bill Prentice. Teammates to these boys that are new to the team this year were: Pat Hoehn, Tom Hooker, and Lynn Simon.

The 1967 Red Devil Golfers are: (Kneeling) Tom Hooker, Don Volmer, Bill Prentice, Lynn Simon. (Standing): Mr. Barr, coach; Pat Hoehn, Brent Witt, Frank Upson, Chuck Canter, Jeff Higdon.

Revive Jeff "Sports of Skill and Patience"

This year was considered as a building year for Jeff's Cross-Country squad. Winning only two meets the entire season, Coach Tim Russell, feels that the boys were inconsistent.

"We were young, with only one senior team," states Mr. Russell; "however, all of the returnees are dedicated and anxious to improve on this past season's showing."

Senior Brent Witt will be the only boy not returning to bolster Jeff's cross-country fortunes for the 1968 season. Witt was usually the number 2 or 3 runner in each meet.

Ryan Brewer was Jeff's number 1 runner all season. Only a junior, he was never defeated by a teammate.

Tongue in cheek, senior Brent Witt struggles to gain the lead in the Charlestown-Jeff cross-country meet.

Album

Taking a test or cheering at a game, the students of Jeff are on the move. They're everywhere. In classes, the library, the gym, at a play, or hustling through the halls, these students are in the limelight.

Attending plays, movies, assemblies, fashion shows, or just buzzing the root beer stand, JHS'ers kept this year in a turmoil.

They have their own goals to meet and places to go! Benefit dances, candy sales, and the prom were all a part of the bustling activity at JHS.

The freshmen were puzzled, the sophomores ambitious, the juniors experienced their first prom, and the seniors lived in a world of excitement, tension, and pride.

Because each student is an individual, the student body had its own problems, its own glories, its own disappointments . . . its own personality.

On the field, in the classrooms, in the fieldhouse are the students of a year to remember, a year to cherish, a year that came alive with enthusiasm.

Medcalf Becomes School Superintendent

Dr. Robert Medcalf, superintendent of the Jeffersonville schools, and Mr. Ralph Hostettler discuss buying new school equipment.

Mr. Ralph Hostettler talks with administrative secretaries Mrs. Joy Brown (seated), Mrs. Corlene Mussleman, Mrs. Mildred Morris, and Mrs. Mildred Sheffield.

City And Township Schools Merge In '67

Participants in historic merger signing at the spring meeting are seated: township advisory board member Thomas J. Kuntz, Jeffersonville school superintendent Robert Medcalf, township trustee Wilmer Dickey, school board president Maxey Densford, school board member Dr. Thomas Havens and board secretary Mrs.

Betty Stemler. Standing: Assistant school superintendent Ralph Hostettler, township attorney C. Ellis Deibel, advisory board member William McCulloch, school board attorney Robert Bottorff, advisory board member Ralph Stemler, and school board members A. O. Bostock and Everett Klintstiver.

Consolidation—the first in Clark County—and a formation of a new school board for the Jeffersonville Community Schools highlighted some of the administrative accomplishments in 1967.

Dr. Robert Medcalf became the new superintendent succeeding Dr. Ronald Walton in August of 1966, after serving one year at Richmond as high school principal. Prior to completing his doctorate degree he was superintendent of schools in Cook County, Illinois.

Under his leadership and an active school board, the Jeffersonville city and township schools merged July 1.

During the summer of 1967 a new board was formed—two from the township and three appointed by the city council.

Members of this board are Mr. C. Boyd Farnsley and Mr. David W. Combs, Mrs. Betty Stemler, Al Bostock, and Robert G. Gallager.

Facing the new board is an $8 million program in school facility construction. This financial program is believed to be accomplished with a minimum of hike in the tax dollar through a survey team from Indiana University.

Priority on the building program will be a new high school, administration building, and two elementary buildings.

Mr. Lloyd Frazer, assistant superintendent, and Dr. Robert Medcalf discuss future administrative plans concerning the new high school.

Mr. Harold Strycker, Jeff High School Principal, Resigns After Five Years

Mr. Harold Strycker, principal of Jeffersonville High School, who resigned in the summer, greets Mr. Crooks, a representative from the Indiana Department of Instruction. Dr. Robert Medcalf, superintendent of the Jeffersonville school system, looks on.

Mr. Claude Mussleman, assistant principal, explains a new idea to Mr. John Brogan, also an assistant principal at Jeff High.

Above: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Strycker attend the going-away party which was given in their honor by the faculty.

Upper right: Mrs. Celestine McCracken makes a permanent record of student report cards.

Middle right: Mrs. Martha Woodward served as an office secretary to Mr. Strycker.

Problems, Complaints, Worries, Flood Counselor's Offices Through The Year

Mr. Russell Andry shows the attendance list to Mr. Edsel Vanderpool. Right: Mrs. Perry makes out attendance slips for first hour.

Setting up schedules, recording grades, listening to complaints, and changing schedules consume much of a counselor's time. Most anytime a student needs him, a counselor can advise him on choosing subjects, applying for scholarships, or listening to his problems.

Freshmen counselors are particularly concerned about the students who are entering high school for the first time.

Three years seem to fly by for many and the bewildered freshmen who came to their counselors three years ago now inquire about college and future employment.

Explaining NEDT score to sophomores and readying them for upcoming tests occupy many hours for counselors advising students in their second year.

Juniors are brought face to face with college tests such as the National Merit Semi-final test. Counselors fill a great need for the junior who is worried about these tests.

Before the bell rings, the attendance office usually overflows with students obtaining passes and admittance slips. Patience and consideration are necessary qualities for attendance supervisors.

Bookstore, Library, Nurse, Cafeteria,

Behind the scene action involves many people when it comes to supplying the bookstore, preparing lunches, ordering books for the library, and typing tests.

On these two pages one may catch a glimpse of those who keep Jeff High running smoothly.

Miss Margaret Hayes and Mrs. Ann Phillips are shown below as they read a list of new books.

(Below right) Mrs. Ann Pennington, school nurse, explains to one of the student assistants the importance of learning first-aid procedures.

Mrs. Isgrigg (bottom left) begins to prepare the day's lunch. The cafeteria also has student helpers.

On the right hand page Mr. Allen readies for the bookstore's morning customers.
